Join us for an online educator workshop, hosted by The New York Historical Society, free and open to all Hawai'i teachers, other educators, and community members interested in rich historical stories and resources. The New York Historical Society brings marginalized histories and women's lives to the forefront.

Featuring
- Creative animated presentations and life stories of historical figures
- Access to primary source documents, images, and other resources
- Easy-to-use curriculum guides, key ideas, and unit essential questions
- Engaging material for all ages—youth, college, and beyond

Explore 2 New Units!

1492–1734: Early Encounters
Early Encounters, 1492–1734 provides resources to allow you to easily discover the history of women in the early colonial period and then integrate them into your lessons plans.

1889–1920: Modernizing America
This unit is broken into four sections: Modern Womanhood, Fighting for Social Reform, Woman’s Suffrage, and Xenophobia and Racism. Each section includes primary source materials and life stories that bring that aspect of the era to life.
